Miller stresses that a deep understanding of game theory—especially the concept of equilibrium—enables players to make optimal decisions that are difficult for opponents to exploit.

He advocates for a strategic, position-dependent starting hand chart that balances aggression with caution.

- Read the board texture carefully?identifying whether it's dry (uncoordinated) or wet (coordinated).

- Bluffing only in situations where the opponent's range can be credibly forced to fold.
- Using blockers and perceived strength to make bluffs more believable.
